2. Citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

In the weaving fabrics of the prior art, the warps and the wefts can be interweaved perpendicularly or aslant, but no matter how they interweaved, the warps and the wefts both present themselves in form of straight line.

Therefore, the weaving fabric of the present invention is deferent from the prior art in that it has curved warps orderly arrayed in a way of gradual change(specially make reference to Claim 3), so the weaving fabric with curved warps and the method and the equipment for producing the fabric are novel and inventive and Claims 1, 3 and 5 are in line with Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT.

The dependent claims contain further characters and are also in line with Articles 33(2) and (3) PCT.
